

Climate Change

Explained to Frogs,
to Toads,
to Batrachians Generally,
and All Earthlings
Who Might Feel a Little Concerned

In a large pot, there were three frogs:

After a long night,
frogs were finally free and equal in law,

and flies were abundant,

although unevenly distributed.

That morning, life was rather good in the pot.

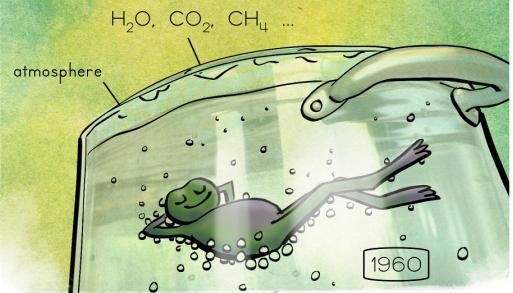

1850

But Burt found the gas button, and said to himself that he was well entitled to modern comfort.

He started to enjoy it, not noticing a small film of gas and water vapor starting to form a lid on the pan.

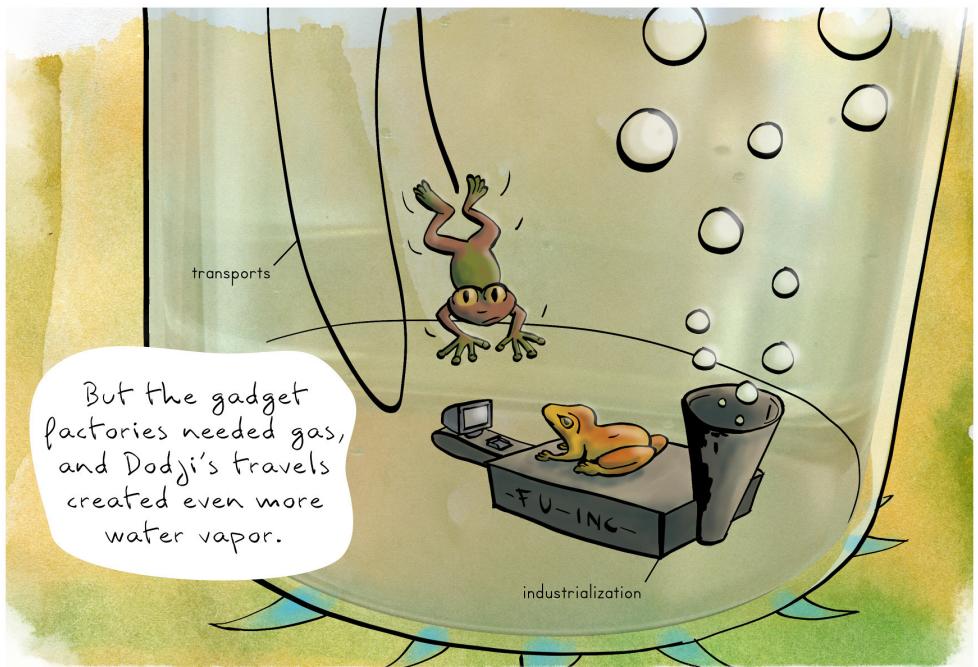

That tempted Fu and he began to sell Burt a whole lot of gadgets in exchange for modern comfort, because he was entitled too.

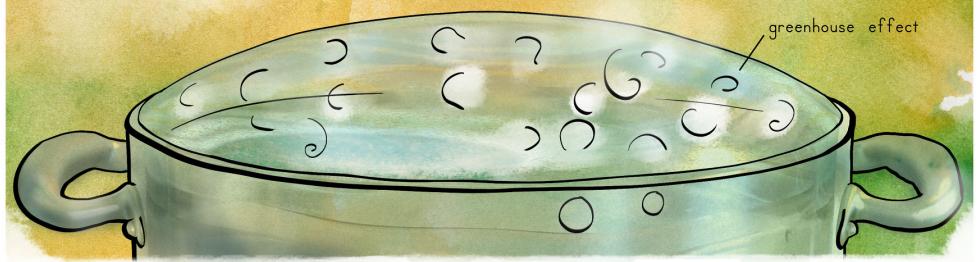

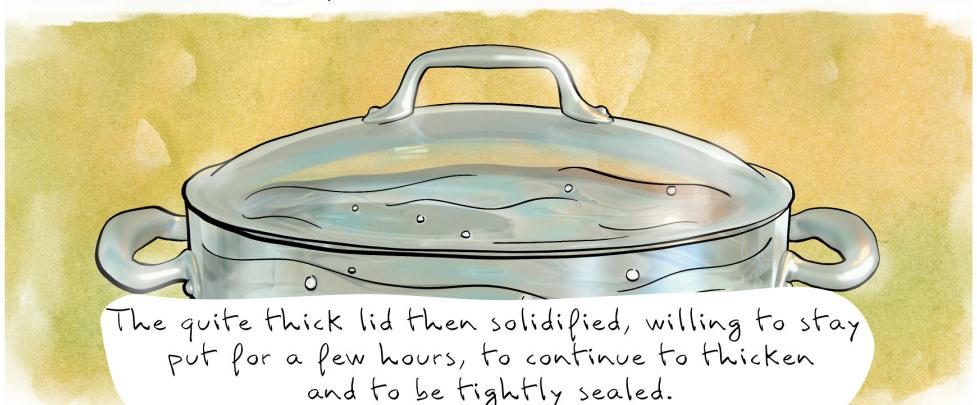

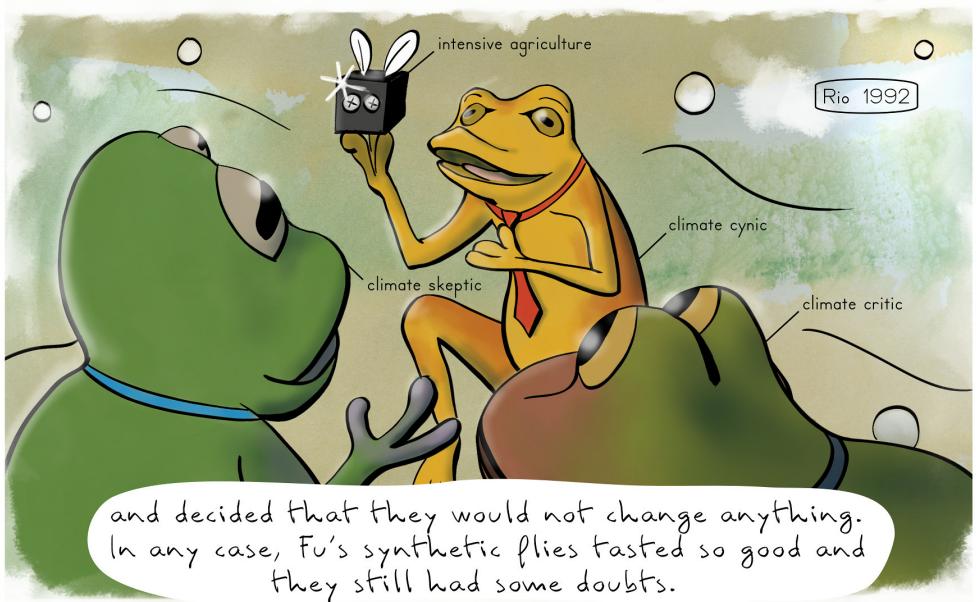

Then Fu hired Dodji to run endless gadgets between Burt and himself. Dodji having to earn the right to flies that were out of his reach before.

The gas got stronger and stronger, which made the lid thicker and thicker. The water gradually got warmer and warmer.

Burt started to look for other gas buttons, his greed drove him to find more comfort.

Fu now had comfort too, but everything around him had an unpleasant smell of gas.

shale gas

deposits in the Arctic

smog

Dodji thought the bottom of the pan was turning unbearable, and illegally migrated to surface.

And the fumes from the gas gave the three frogs a rash.

So they met once again to find out whether or not they could afford for the water to come to a boil.

Copenhagen 2009

It was already 45 °C (113 °F).

Burt said that 20°C (68°F) higher was where the line was drawn, but he would not give up his comfort.

Fu said that 30°C (86°F) higher and a smell of gas was completely bearable. He planned to make the most of the comforts he had hard earned, and that he could supply synthetic flies to all inhabitants of the pan.

Dodgi said that they just had to cut off gas and leave him his share of wild flies, but the other two pretended not to have heard.

Paris 2015

A galactic restaurant is advertising

Today's special FROGS

SNACK BAR

boiled frogs, cooked in the Earth-pot, for lunch today.

in 2100

Fortunately,
no one is safe from having their gas shut off.

This work is licensed © Camille Bissuel 2015 / www.nylnook.com
Thanks to Danyel Davidson www.daddmonkeydesign.com for its features, to Lucas Steller www.lucassteller.de for its water shader.

To Alain Marfaing www.alainmarfaing.com for his great english version review and to my Sophie, for making this comic possible. !

ISBN 979-10-95663-01-0

Published on www.bookelis.com